

Happy Earth Day!

Better(not bigger)Vermont

Our message for Earth Day 2021 (which is April 22nd) simply echoes Richard Louv's 2019 article calling for access to Nature as a basic human right. Need we say more?

<https://www.childrenandnature.org/resources/outdoors-for-all-access-to-nature-is-a-human-right/>

We also call your attention to a new film premiering this Tuesday (20th). 8 Billion Angels weaves together voices of people around the world as they confront the growing impact of overpopulation on their lives and on the planet. It dispels the misperceptions that technology can save us, that merely reducing consumption is the answer, or that only the developing world is to blame. Tickets for the April 20th screening and followup panel discussion are available at <https://8billionangels.org/>, and the film trailer is at https://fb.watch/3V9-qW5MU\_/.

Starting on April 23rd, 8 BILLION ANGELS will be available for viewing at home via www.abramorama.com; and it should also become available on Amazon in late-May or early-June. We'll provide more information about these two options when we have it.

You Can Help

Please forward this email to others.

Better(not bigger)Vermont works to improve the lives and natural surroundings of present and future Vermonters. Please support our efforts by making a donation and/or forwarding this newsletter to others.

Thank You!

<https://betternotbiggervt.org>

betternotbiggervt@gmail.com

Share Via:

